Interested in a paid casual position where you will speak about your experience with the Educational Support Service on videos that will go on UNSW's website? Then we want to hear from you!

What is being developed?

The Educational Support Service is seeking to develop some videos to promote the service across the campus and ensure that all students are informed of the types of support available from commencement through to graduation.

Who can apply?

We would like to hear from students who have previously seen an Educational Support Advisor and are willing to speak about their experience on camera (please note that you do not need to share more information than you are comfortable with, and detailed personal information is not required). Several positions are available.

Students who participate need to be willing for the comments that they make to be included in a video placed on the UNSW website, and will be required to provide written consent for this to occur.

How long will it take and how much will I be paid?

Students who are selected for the role will be paid $32.07/hour in line with the professional staff casual salary rate for Student Assistants. It is anticipated that students will be paid for up to 4 hours for the role.

What do I need to do if interested?

Interested students are asked to submit their to fiona.reid@unsw.edu.au by 5pm on 1 September 2017.

What’s in it for me?

- Involvement in this project will enable you to:
• Share your experience with other students and play a role in ensuring that they are aware of the support they could receive from the Educational Support Service.
• Learn and be involved in the filming process, gaining experience in the entire shooting process.
• Earn some pocket money without having to commit to a large number of working hours.
