Get a postgraduate degree with a global perspective

UNSW is committed to giving its postgraduate students the tools to see the bigger picture, to embrace diversity and gain a global perspective through a Borderless Education.

Simply put, Borderless Education means our students will have access to a global network of institutions, research and innovations without ever having to leave the UNSW campus. The result of which is a Global Perspective. We encourage our students to take a glimpse into the whole world. An interaction with a professor who studied abroad, a lively debate with an international student, sharing research with a peer on another continent. All of these things add together to give you a new perspective.

Take our alumni Nicole. She studied her Masters at UNSW and is using it to help others all around the world in her role at Unicef.
