The Global Youth Advancement Summit will bring together up to 200 rising young leaders from around the world to address and develop solutions to global inequity. Delegates will exchange ideas, showcase innovative products and services, pitch their business ventures, learn from each other, and build genuine networks that will enable them to collaborate to define their future, and transform their communities. The summit is scheduled for 11-13 June 2019, and open to persons aged 18-35.

Summit organizers hope to identify young people with innovative ideas, business ventures, and social impact initiatives. Unlike many similar events, Summit delegates will be in the lead, driving all activities with support from faculty and industry mentors.

The Call for Proposals closes on 25 November 2018. Applicants must submit a proposal to be considered for the program. Proposals should demonstrate delegates’ contribution to solutions that reduce global inequity in five key thematic areas including Arts and Culture, Education, the Environment, Health Care, and Livelihoods (Employment and Entrepreneurship). You can find information about that process here: www.msuyouthsummit.com/call-for-proposals/

A select group of delegates with exceptional proposals will receive scholarships that cover airfare, lodging, and meals during the Summit.
