EDI Grants program

Could your ideas be worth $5000?

The Division of Equity Diversity and Inclusion EDI Grants program is back for 2020. There are five EDI Grants available of up to $5,000 each for projects that contribute to creating a culture that encourages equity, supports a diverse and inclusive community and drives positive change.

The EDI Grants are open to all students and all ongoing and fixed-term academic and professional staff. Successful candidates will be announced on the 10th April and will have until November 2020 to deliver their projects. An overall winner of the grants will then be decided on by the EDI Board.

In 2019 the EDI Grants program produced many meaningful projects including a short film that discusses the barriers faced by refugee women, an app facilitating inclusion and diversity at conferences and a workshop series for women in STEAM. The overall winner was ConnectEquip, a program that connected people with disabilities to students who worked to innovate tangible solutions to facilitate participation in sporting, leisure and/or lifestyle activities. A further four project entries were picked up by other funding streams, with two featuring in Diversity Fest. Read more about the 2019 winners.
