Public Health Study Tour in Indonesia with ACICIS - Summer 2020

NOTE: Approval to participate in this program is dependant on changes to the current travel restrictions and confirmation that it is safe for UNSW students to travel to the region.

The Public Health Study Tour (PHST) is a two-week intensive program for public health students to gain experience in the public health sector in Indonesia. The study tour will provide an introduction to the public health challenges currently facing Indonesia, as well as existing government, international and community-led initiatives tasked with meeting these challenges. This is a unique opportunity for Australian students to hear from leading health professionals, policy-makers and community health workers in Indonesia, and to discuss approaches to health issues with Indonesian counterparts.

The two-week intensive tour is made up of a comprehensive seminar series, and a number of field visits to health care facilities, organisations and schools in Indonesia which provide students with the opportunity to see firsthand how the public health system works in Indonesia and to understand the complex challenges it faces.

No background in Indonesian language is required to participate in this tour. Students from the following disciplines are welcome to apply: Public Health, Epidemiology, Occupational Health and Safety, Environmental Health, Health Policy, Community Health, Development Studies, Public Policy and Health Sciences.
$3,000 New Colombo Plan mobility grants are available to eligible undergraduate students from UNSW wishing to spend two weeks in Indonesia on ACICIS Study Indonesia’s Public Health Study Tour (PHST).
