The Science Po Summer School's University Programme is a unique opportunity for university students and graduates from all over the world to discover Sciences Po, France's leading university in the social sciences.

Participants in the Summer School’s University Programme can:

Study Sciences Po’s key disciplines, such as international relations, political science, or economics, in the social sciences track.

All classes are taught in English by Sciences Po professors and researchers. Courses taught online in Summer 2020 include:

- The Age of Economists: Globalization, Growth and Inequalities
- The European Union at a Crossroads
- Global Diplomacy: Theory and Practice
- Human Rights and Global Development
- Human Security
Immerse themselves in intensive French language study in the French language track.

The French language track offers courses for all levels, from complete beginners to advanced speakers. Classes focus on developing language skills while also delving into French culture and contemporary issues in France. Small, interactive classes allow students to make rapid progress and improve their communication and comprehension skills.
