In place of the regular FUBiS summer terms with on-campus instruction in Berlin, FUBiS offers interested participants an online program for the first time: a selection of online courses with the possibility of ECTS credit transfer, as well as a public digital lecture series.

The FUBiS online program includes offerings in the fields of sociology, art history, history, political science, economics, philosophy, and German. Find the full schedule at http://www.fubis.org/online.

This nuanced approach is addressed to a wide range of international students, who we know are dealing with the current crisis in many different ways and have different needs and preferences, as well as possibly guidelines from their home universities as to how and if a short-term study abroad experience is feasible for them this year.

Risk assessment

All programs involve some degree of risk to participants. If you choose to source a provider on your own, please remember to do some research on them first and ensure that they are a legitimate organisation and that the product they offer will definitely meet your requirements. Students are therefore advised to undertake their own risk assessment before enrolment and any participation in these programs is at their own risk.
