

About Census Dates

The census date is the last day you can withdraw from a course without financial penalty. If you don't withdraw before midnight on the census date you are liable to pay the course fee.

Your fees are due at the end of the first week of the Teaching Period, and your Fee Statement is available on myUNSW at that time. Census date is the payment period deadline.

Each Teaching Period has its own census date, set by the University in accordance with Commonwealth legislation (HESA 2003). Census date deadlines cannot be extended for any teaching period

Information for

Commonwealth supported students

Upfront or deferred, your payment must be received by census date.

Your contribution payment is due at the end of the first week of the teaching period, and your Fee Statement is available on myUNSW from that time.

You must finalise all enrolment, student contribution payments and HECS-HELP arrangements by the relevant teaching period census date or your enrolment will be cancelled. This includes provision of a valid Tax File Number if required.

Under Government legislation, Commonwealth Supported students who have elected not to provide their Tax File Number and have not made the required Student Contribution/HECS-HELP payment by the date set by the University, must have their enrolment cancelled. Such students will not be permitted to undertake studies in their program in that semester.

For further information visit the Government's Study Assist website.
