Considering postgraduate study? Now is the time to invest in yourself to prepare for the future of work post COVID-19.

Living through a pandemic and experiencing its ramifications both economically and socially on our community has not been easy. Yet this unique time has presented both businesses and individuals with an opportunity – an opportunity to embrace the change and adapt for a brighter future. Learn how you can use this time to re-align career goals, upskill and equip yourself through postgraduate study for the new future of work.

Hear from an expert panel including UNSW Professor of Economics Richard Holden, career advisor Blair Slater and UNSW postgraduate alumni. They’ll reveal the new in-demand skills, share insight into gaining a competitive edge in the new job market and discuss how to establish long-term career success.

Find out more