Student Minds® is the student voice on mental health: opening minds, creating understanding and connecting students with the resources to thrive. We are an outreach program driven by students.

Student Minds® aims to raise awareness, cultivate knowledge and develop skills that contribute to student success, wellbeing and resilience.

Student Minds® aims to:

1. Reduce stigma surrounding mental health
2. Increase awareness of mental health issues
3. Encourage help-seeking behaviour
4. Promote positive psychological resilience
5. Reach the wider student body

Student Minds® encourages any interested students to volunteer for the cause and leave a valued and important legacy

Conference Theme - Student Wellbeing Matters: Challenges and Ways Forward

What opportunities does volunteering offer?

You will have the opportunity to organise student-run events and campaigns.

Mentoring, sponsorship and training is provided by Student Life and Learning via UNSW CAPS.

The program provides access to a range of training workshops, some of which are required for Student Minds® executive team and volunteers while others are optional.

Some workshops are geared specifically towards mental health, including certified training in Mental Health First Aid. Other workshops and training focus on: peer to peer communication and engagement and understanding differences in cultural attitudes to mental health and understanding psychological literacy.

Being involved in Student Minds® provides the opportunity to develop skills used in social enterprise as these skills underpin this volunteer program.

Student Minds® volunteers need to be ready to build their own capacity for self leadership and self-management, be prepared to work collaboratively with university staff and other students and to contribute to the success of the Student
Minds® activity and event calendar.

There are a variety of induction programs, training and mentored experiences that support the goals of the program.
